(b) Classification Standards Definitions

(i) Administrative and Clerical Definitions

'Administrative work' means the exercise of an appropriate level of responsibility and discretion in undertaking functions of an administrative nature where administration is concerned with achievement of the organisation's corporate goals through planning, organising, directing and controlling resources and/or activities. Administration is also concerned with the development and implementation of policy to achieve set objectives and desired outcomes.

'Broad direction' means that employees are expected to develop and achieve objectives for specific functions under their control that will ensure the attainment of results critical to the efficient operation of the work unit, section, branch or Agency.

'Clerical direction' means instructions and guidance on particular tasks and programs given by supervisors or managers to subordinate staff. It includes direction from sources such as legislation, standards and manuals.

'Clerical supervision' means supervision provided by supervisors or managers to subordinate staff to ensure adherence to directions given, to decide on proposed solutions or courses of action, and to review and check the work of clerical staff.

'Clerical work' means the exercise of an appropriate level of responsibility and clerical knowledge and skill under a requisite degree of direction and supervision in the understanding of the preparation, processing and maintenance of documents, records and electronic data representing the transactions or business of the work unit or organisation being served. Clerical work is performed within a framework of legislation, policies, procedures, regulations, guidelines, precedents, instructions, or custom and practice, both written and oral.

'Direct supervision' means there is limited responsibility for the final outcome of work undertaken because only limited discretion is available to select the appropriate means of completing the task. Conformity with instructions is measured by the satisfactory completion of allocated tasks.

'General direction' means situations where detailed or specific instructions are limited to unusual features.

'General supervision' means that general instructions are given and tasks are undertaken to achieve the required outcomes or objectives. Discretion and choice in selecting the most appropriate method of completing the allotted tasks is expected and encouraged.

This document is translated from the original order and is not in itself a legal document. No responsibility is taken for any discrepancy that may arise between this document and the order that was printed and published by the Printing Authority of Tasmania.

'Limited supervision' means that work is undertaken within established objectives and with little guidance. Conformity with instructions is usually measured in terms of achievement of stated objectives to senior management-agreed standards.

'Routine supervision' means the responsibility for the final outcome is limited because the work is carried out in accordance with established guidelines and practices, however there is scope for the exercise of discretion in the choice of work methods.

'Specific direction' means situations where precise instructions are given with little or no choice provided.

(ii) Operational Definitions

'Administrative supervision' means persons working under administrative supervision would normally have the work area defined in terms of broadly stated responsibilities and functions. They are expected to undertake work within this framework and would not usually be told what is to be done. The person would not normally receive technical instruction from their supervisor.

The person has a broad framework of trade or subject matter knowledge and extensive experience. Within this framework they would be required to make informed decisions relating to their own work, the work of their area and the supervision of that area.

The person's own performance and the overall performance of their area are kept under review through oral and written work reports. Inspection of the work area would be infrequent.

'Direct supervision' means persons working under direct supervision are usually given a few easily understood instructions. Where appropriate, deadlines and priorities for task completion would also be given.

While the person may be expected to use some judgment in carrying out routine recurring assignments, it is expected that deviations, problems or unfamiliar situations not covered in general instructions would be referred to the supervisor.

The work is normally subject to progress checks, and the final product or results are usually checked.

'Direction' refers to instructions and guidance to subordinate operational staff by senior personnel. It includes direction from non-human sources such as manuals, codes, standards, etc.

This document is translated from the original order and is not in itself a legal document. No responsibility is taken for any discrepancy that may arise between this document and the order that was printed and published by the Printing Authority of Tasmania.

'General supervision' means persons working under general supervision would be provided with general instructions usually covering only the broader aspects of the work, or where there are unusual situations which do not have clear precedents. This allows some latitude for staff to select the appropriate method and sequence in completing their tasks or assignments.

The person normally has a good knowledge and makes more involved decisions within the confines of this knowledge.

Tasks and assignments may be subject to progress checks usually to ensure in broad terms, that satisfactory progress is being made. Completed work may be evaluated for suitability and conformity to policy and requirements.

'Limited direction' means persons working under limited direction are provided with a clear statement of overall objectives and the resources available. In conjunction with their supervisor they decide on projects and assignments to be carried out and set deadlines.

The person is fully competent and very experienced in a technical sense and requires little guidance during the performance of assignments. The person would have authority to plan and carry out assignments, using some latitude in approach to achieve the desired objectives.

Completed work is reviewed only in terms of flexibility, compatibility with other work, or effectiveness in meeting defined objectives.

'Limited supervision' means persons working under limited supervision would be expected to have a broad trade or subject matter knowledge and wide experience. They perform work in accordance with broadly based standing instructions. In a technical sense, the person is fully competent and very experienced requiring little guidance.

The person is expected to report on the work of the area required. The area's progress and performance would normally be inspected at irregular intervals. The standard of product performance of the area is kept under review.

'Supervision' means the supervision given to subordinate operational staff by senior personnel and consists of ensuring adherence to directions, solving operational problems, giving decisions on operational solutions proposed by subordinate personnel and reviewing and checking the work of operational staff.

This document is translated from the original order and is not in itself a legal document. No responsibility is taken for any discrepancy that may arise between this document and the order that was printed and published by the Printing Authority of Tasmania.
